Lights out Sat. a.m.

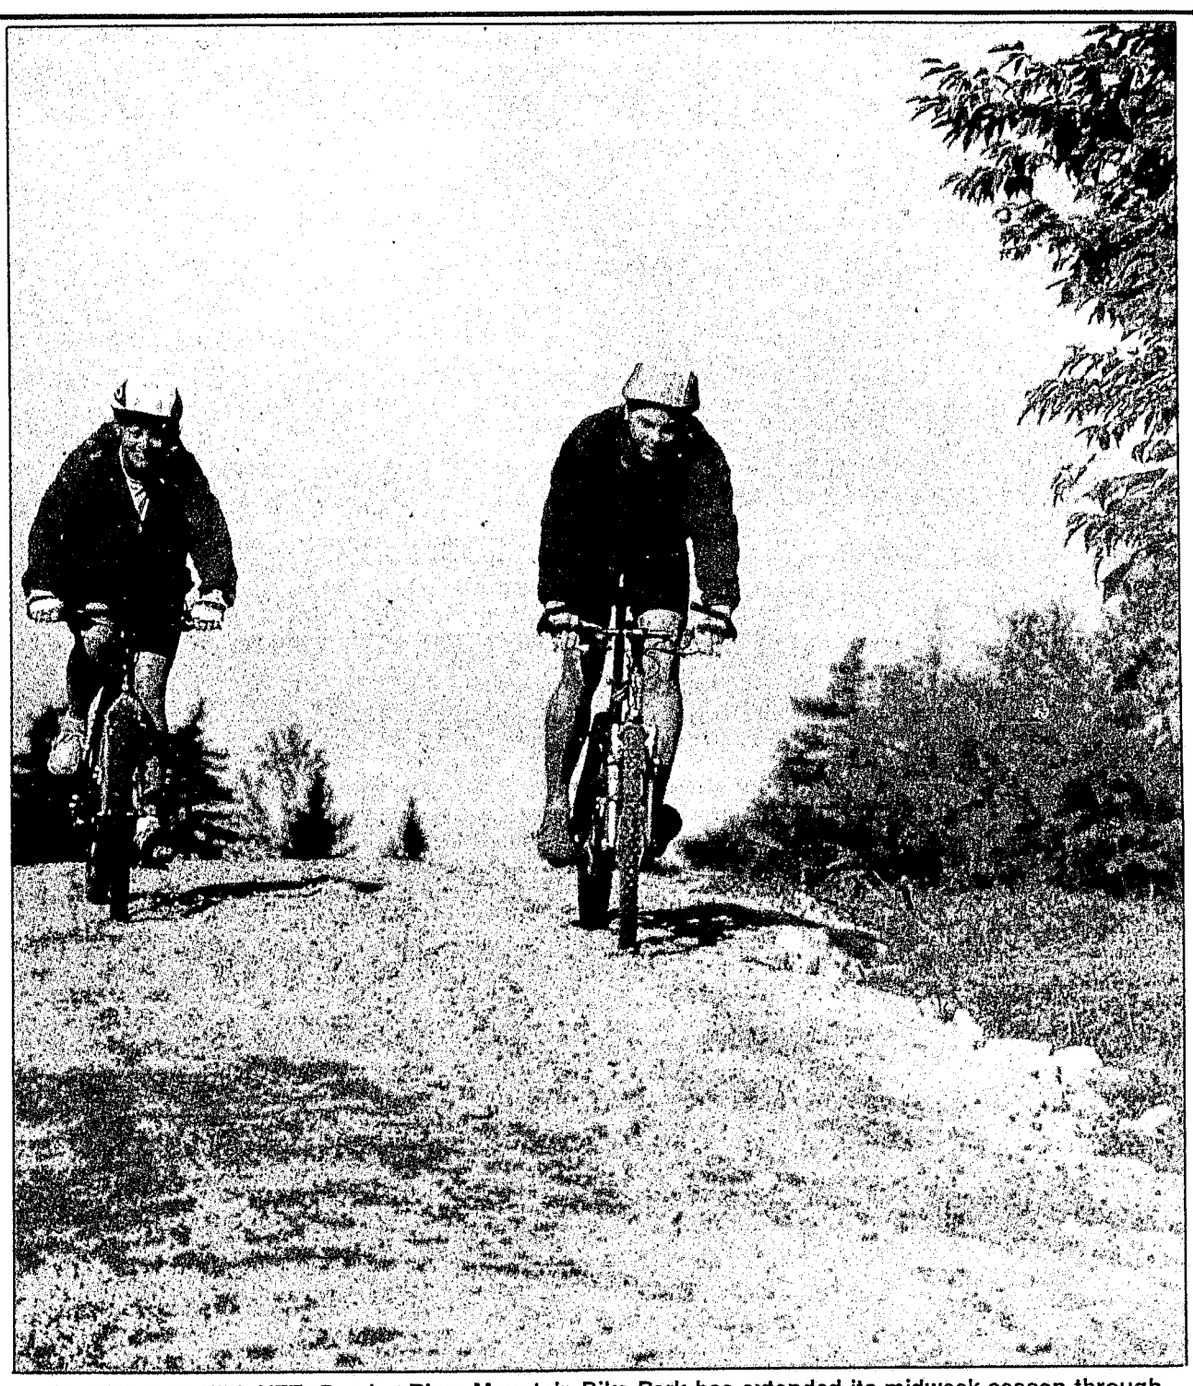
If you need to get up early Saturday morning, don't rely on your electric alarm clock.

Central Maine Power Company plans to shut off power for five hours beginning at 1:30 a.m. Saturday morning.

Most of the local area will be blacked out, including Bethel, West Bethel, Gilead, Newry, Bryant Pond, Locke Mills and parts of Hanover.

In all, about 7,000 customers will have their power shut off, according to CMP's Bridgeton office.

In the event of inclement weather, the work will be scheduled for the same time Sunday morning.



NOT OVER THE HILL YET--Sunday River Mountain Bike Park has extended its midweek season through Sept. 27, due to the large number of mountain bikers using the lift-services trail system. After that the park will be open weekends until Columbus Day (Oct. 12--the weekend of the Ninth Annual Blue Mountain Arts and Crafts Festival). The park had previously been scheduled to be closed during the week beginning Sept. 27. (Sharon McNeill/Sunday River photo)

CPS vote Tuesday

By WENDY HANSCOM

District voters will decide Sept. 22 whether on not to build an estimated $4.9 million addition to the Crescent Park School in Bethel.

Polling place will be open Tuesday in each SAD 44-member town from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

SAD 44 residents can cast ballots in their home towns at: the Andover town hall, the Bethel fire station and the Greenwood, Newry and Woodstock municipal buildings.

Absentee ballots are available at all five town offices.

Attendance was extremely light at a public hearing last Wednesday on the proposed addition. Fifteen people attended the 20-minute hearing. As at other meetings held earlier this year throughout the district, there was little opposition to the plan.

Project plans include 11 classrooms, a library, a small kitchen, cafeteria, gymnasium and stage area.

The project would be funded by a 20-year bond, with interest and principal amounting to about $7.9 million, according to SAD 44 Administrative Assistant Bruce Powell.

The state will probably pay between 53 to 55 percent of that bond, Powell said at last week's meeting.

Taxpayers in Bethel, Greenwood and Andover can expect a $12 to $15 increase on their property tax bill per $50,000 of evaluation for the life of the bond, Powell said. The increase in Newry and Woodstock would be slightly higher, he said.

If SAD 44 voters approve the expansion, the district's next step would be to gain Bethel planning board approval for the project.

Superintendent Dewaine Craig said Rea Design Associates of Auburn would take the project before the town's planning board.

Sky Frontier band member recovering after being stabbed in N.H. donut shop

By WENDY HANSCOM

A former Bryant Pond resident and drummer in a local rock band, was released this weekend from a New Hampshire hospital after being stabbed at a Dunkin Donuts in Manchester, N.H.

Jason Rowland, 21, of Haverhill, N.H. was admitted to Eliot Hospital on Sept. 5. He was released from the hospital on Sunday, according to a hospital spokesman.

Police have charged Michael Rudnick, 38, of Manchester with first degree assault. He was arraigned last week in Manchester District Court.

A Mountain Valley High School graduate, Rowland moved to Haverhill about two years ago, where his father and stepmother, Jack and Dolly Rowland, live. The Rowlands are former residents of Livermore Falls.

His mother and stepfather, Janice and Dwight Mills live in Bryant Pond. Dwight Mills is a retired Rumford police officer.

Connie St. Pierre of The Outlook said Rowland has played drums for the studio's Sky Frontier Band and continues to sit in on studio recording sessions.

Rowland is also a member of the "thrash metal" band Peace Corpse, which recently released an extended play cassette featuring five songs recorded at The Outlook.

"They've been getting some good reviews in local music magazines and some play on college radio," St. Pierre said. "He's a really excellent drummer. Hopefully his music will continue."

Rowland had been working at the Dunkin Donuts for just three weeks before the attack.

Police say Rowland's co-workers said Rudnick stabbed him after becoming upset over a cup of coffee he was served. Witnesses said Rudnick

LURC approval appears likely for skiway's rezoning in Riley

By LIZ CHAPMAN

The staff of the Land Use Regulation Commission has recommended approving a zoning change in Riley Township in northern Oxford County to allow future expansion of the Sunday River Ski Resort.

The commission is expected to act on the proposal when it meets in Bangor on Thursday, according to Katherine Varney, supervisor of LURC's Development Review Committee.

Under Maine law, LURC must approve land-use changes in the state's unorganized townships. In a 15-page fact-finding report to the commission, the LURC staff said the resort has satisfied the commission's criteria for rezoning 239 acres in Riley Township.

The rezoning would change about 78 acres to commercial industrial development to allow construction of support facilities; and 84 acres to general development to allow housing and condominium construction.

The remaining acreage would not be developed except for ski trails and lifts, under the current plan.

"Obviously, this is preliminary to the (LURC) approval, but we're very optimistic about it," said Sunday River spokesman Skip King. "The ski area has been growing rapidly. We've been able to do that by meeting the needs of our skiers."

The resort employs some 800 seasonal workers during ski season and pumps more than $6 million in payroll alone into the western Maine economy, according to the LURC report and Sunday River officials.

The resort asked LURC to approve the rezoning of 239 acres of land in Riley Township to accommodate future expansion, including housing units and support facilities such as a base lodge and maintenance buildings.

In March, LURC and the Department of Environmental Protection approved Sunday River's expansion plans in both Newry and a different portion of Riley Township.

The approved expansion included construction of four high-capacity quad chairlifts; development of about 201 acres of new ski trails; associated snowmaking facilities; and a base lodge in the town of Newry.

The Riley Township expansion is part of a long-range $14 million expansion of the resort, according to Sunday River officials.

The total expansion project is expected to double the resort's current 12-lift, 72-trail system.

School board rejects move to kill sports fees

By WENDY HANSCOM

After an often heated debate Monday evening, the SAD 44 board of directors voted to retain the district's new sports participation user fee.

The fee was instituted while the board was building the FY '93 budget this spring.

During the citizens comment period Monday evening, Susan Rosenberg of Woodstock asked the directors to reconsider their position on sports fees.

"I know academics are the most important part of school, but our students do well and participate in after school activities, too, like sports, drama or whatever," Rosenberg said. "But sports is the only (activity) that's penalized. What carries a school's name further than sports. It seems like you're discouraging sports. One of the first things a student looks at is pride in their teams."

Cross-country coach John Applin told the board that the fee had stopped one of his athletes from turning out this fall.

"We went to Mt. Abram last week for a cross-country meet and the boys did very well. The girls would have won the meet, but we lacked a veteran runner, because her family cannot afford the fee," Applin said. "Although I know her family qualifies for reduced hot lunch, they choose not to apply. I wish it was academics (that all students take pride in) because I'm also a teacher, but it's not. I think you are hurting Telstar by not allowing everyone to participate."

Bethel Director Jane Rolfe said she was also opposed to the fee.

"It is going to hurt the athletic program," Rolfe said. "Because there are people out there who won't apply for reduced lunches."

Bethel director John Brown pointed out that approximately $9,000 of revenue from the fees was built into the budget.

"We've already lost at least some of that money by waiving the fee for those getting free and reduced lunches," Brown said. "If we eliminate the fee, then we've got to come up with the money somewhere else."

Superintendent Dewaine Craig said it was too early in the year to determine where the loss in revenue might be recouped.

Monday night's discussion of the sports fee came in two phases.

When Merton Brown asked that the issue be placed on the next meeting's agenda, Superintendent Craig urged the board to take the issue up Monday night. He said if the board waited two weeks to rescind the fee, it would cause an avalanche of paper work for administrators.

But the directors initially voted against placing it on the agenda. Craig pointed out that it would be on the next meeting's agenda anyway. Woodstock director Marcel Polak said he would reluctantly change his

Local burglaries drop

By WENDY HANSCOM

People living in the SAD 44 area are still unlikely to become victims of violent crime. Serious crimes are still seldom committed here. And, surprisingly, most of the area also seems to be bucking the state-wide trend of increasing burglaries in rural areas.

(Rural areas are defined as those without a municipal police force.)

The number of rural burglaries in Maine increased from 3,034 in 1990 to 3,701 in 1991.

But according to Oxford County Sheriff's Office statistics, burglaries in Woodstock and Greenwood during the first six months of 1992 have dropped significantly compared to the same period last year. The numbers have increased just slightly in Andover and Newry.

Bethel police are also reporting fewer burglaries so far this year.

But Oxford County Sheriff Lloyd "Skip" Herrick said burglaries throughout the county are still probably on the rise.

"If (burglaries) have dropped off there, without a doubt they're probably picking up somewhere else," Herrick said. "I'd like to credit it to us for doing a fabulous job, and that we don't need any more men, but I know that's not the case. According to the Maine Uniformed Crime Report, rural crime is up 19 percent."

During the first six months of last year, Sheriff's Office deputies investigated 43 burglaries in Woodstock. During the same period this year, residents reported just three burglaries.

Numbers were also down in

Accident damages school bus, but no one is hurt

By WENDY HANSCOM

No was injured Friday afternoon when a New Mexico man rear-ended a SAD 44 bus at the intersection of routes 2 and 26 in Newry.

Busdriver Paul Bodwell said he had been stopped waiting for traffic to pass, and as he started to make the turn off Route 2 and onto Route 26 and a pickup truck hauling a camper struck the back of the bus.

"You'd never even know we were hit," Bodwell said. "It was just a slight bump. We were lucky."

State troopers, who had stopped a truck at a portable weigh station near the intersection, witnessed the accident and agreed with the busdriver's description, Superintendent Dewaine Craig said at Monday night's board meeting.

The pickup truck was driven by Elmer Kingsolver, 65, of Santa Fe,

Opinions

Build it

SAD 44 voters will decide Tuesday whether or not to commit the district (that is, their own tax money) to build the long-awaited Crescent Park School addition.

We urge that they vote "yes" and approve the project.

The need for the addition is unquestioned and has been more than fully demonstrated at public hearings on the project. The present elementary facilities in Bethel are simply not adequate for the number of children being educated here. The conditions are not so bad that education can't happen here, but they are bad enough that the educational process is seriously compromised. And that means kids are not learning as much as they might.

Few would question the need, but many would ask "Why this need--when the district and local citizens have so many other pressing problems?"

Because, we would argue, the CPS addition is (and we won't try to write our way around the obvious cliche) a legitimate investment in the future, an investment in the educational infrastructure of SAD 44, an investment that will pay dividends in the lives of the children who will pass through the school for many years to come.

And any prudent investment in their lives is a wise investment in the entire community.

In a thoughtful letter to the editor this week, Joseph Aloisio Jr. argues that an investment in the CPS addition would come at the expense of more seriously needed educational staff and programs. We doubt, however, that it would come to that sort of either-or situation, at least not in the long term.

District budget proposals are perceived by most taxpayers in terms of their level of increase, not their absolute amount (which is mighty). The cost of the CPS addition will soon become part of the basic tax load. Battles over how much to expand or contract district programs will be fought out, certainly within a few years, without regard to the cost of the addition.

And we trust district officials will make good on their promise to make the addition a real community resource, open to a variety of community groups and purposes.

Think of the addition as a community investment in organized space and light, a place in which countless bright things will happen in the years to come.

Vote "yes."

CPS--yes or no?

IT'S LONG OVERDUE

To the Editor:

On Sept. 22, the residents of SAD 44 will be asked to vote on a referendum question concerning the construction of an addition to the Crescent Park School in Bethel. I hope district voters will stop at the polls on that date and support the project.

The Crescent Park School was built in 1950-51, with a recommendation from the building committee that additional rooms, a gymnasium, and an auditorium be added to the building as soon as possible. The Crescent Park complex now includes several portable classroom units, the current enrollment is over 300 students; K through grade 5, and I believe that enrollment will continue to increase.

Many of the educational programs are offered in cramped and fragmented areas. Crescent Park students need more room. Some special services are offered in undersized rooms or the hallways. Physical Ed. classes are often held at Gould Academy, with students losing valuable time in travelling back and forth from CPS and Gould. Students have no facilities for special group or schoolwide assemblies, again losing valuable time as they often travel to Telstar or Gould. Students eat lunch at their regular classroom desk. Students in the portable units are without water or sewer facilities.

The addition will allow our students to learn in a complete educational facility and to regain valuable lost educational time. The addition would address many of the shortfalls that our students encounter on a daily basis in 1992, and would address the shortfalls the building committee could foresee in 1950.

I fully realize the economics of 1992. But we cannot pick and choose when we would like to build the addition. If this project is defeated, it could easily be 15 years before the district has another chance to build this addition due to state bureaucracy. School construction money is bond money and separate from general school subsidy, which is affected by state budget cuts, the state has guaranteed the bond for this project. This is a chance for us to regain some of the money we have paid into the State of Maine. If we do not approve the project and accept these funds, this money will go to another school district.

My daughter will not benefit from this project, but my sons will Everyone must know of a child who will benefit from this addition. Our children are our future. Crescent Park can truly become a community center, with the benefits of this addition available to all. This addition is a positive commitment to the future of Bethel and the future of our children. Please support our children with a "yes" vote next Tuesday.

W'STOCK PARENT: 'YES'

To the Editor:

I am writing to urge the voters of Woodstock to support the Crescent Park School Addition Project next Tuesday. It was not long ago that our children were faced with the need for a new school. As president of the W.P.T.O. at that time, I worked closely with the parent leaders from Bethel. Their support of our project helped us considerably. The result of this district-wide effort was the construction of the new Woodstock School.

Now the time has come to listen to Bethel's needs. Their children are faced with many of the same problems our children once had. Their school is overcrowded and lacks a cafeteria and other important spaces. Their children must leave the building for P.E. classes during the winter. Sound familiar?

As a person who has been actively involved with elementary school education for the past nine years both as a volunteer and a P.T.A. member, I agree wholeheartedly with the need for the CPS addition. I hope you will agree. Please vote 'Yes' next Tuesday.

Sue Rosenberg

WE NEED YOUR 'YES'

To the Editor:

We will all have a chance to decide on the future of the CPS addition on Tuesday, Sept. 22. Polls will be open 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. in each town in the district. If absentee voting is needed, ballots are available at your town office. Check with your town clerk for the proper procedure.

Not only will the new addition give students at Crescent Park a much needed gym, multi-purpose room, cafeteria; this new community facility can be utilized by senior citizens, Adult Ed., Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, etc.

Six double-wide portable classrooms (without running water and toilet facilities) need to be replaced by this new addition.

These crescent Park students are in a crisis.

They would appreciate your "yes" vote on Sept. 22.

NO BARGAIN FOR NEWRY

To the Editor:

Decision time for the school district's taxpayers is almost here. I think it's fair to say that no matter which town we are from we all want the best educational facility we can afford for our children. At first glance the addition at Crescent Park School seems to fit this desire.

For a Newry voter, however, this project may not be the best choice. Currently Newry's commitment to SAD 44 is over $2100 a day, (about $768,000 per year). This amount will go substantially higher if we take on the added debt of this $5 million dollar project.

To vote for the proposed addition to Crescent Park School in Bethel is to commit your town to a partnership with the state bureaucracy. Recent history with tree growth funds proves that when it comes to money the state cannot be trusted. While the state would be committed to part of the debt they do not have to fund the circuit breaker program leaving the district exposed to much higher future costs than are now being considered.

Last year Newry developed a feasible, well thought out education plan that didn't rely on the state or other towns to work. A majority voted for this plan. If we want art, music, outward-bound, etc. we could have them, and have them for less money than we will be paying to the district. A district where the curriculum will be under increased budget cutting pressure because of the added burden of the new school debt.

State regulations are strangling our ability to educate our children The independence of a town operated and funded school could cut this bureaucratic red tape. Should Newry look at it's options again?

NEED TEACHERS MORE

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, Sept. 22, our community faces a very difficult decision--to build a $4,900,000 addition to Crescent Park School or to keep class sizes and programs at their current levels. Why is it a decision between these two things? Because this area cannot or will not (it does not matter which, the results are the same) support both. I know that the school is necessary, that it may be 10 years before we could try again, and that we can get a real bargain because of the slumping economy, but if we cannot afford both the debt and the operating budget we should not build the addition. Buying something you cannot afford just because it's on sale does not make sense. I would much rather have my children in a portable classroom (my daughter was in one last year, my son is in one this year; they both like the quiet the portables provide) than have them in big classes, and without art, music or gym.

There is a very real possibility that if this school addition is built we could have plenty of rooms with no teachers to occupy them. Please, for the children, vote "no" on Tuesday.

Once again, into the gap

ABSURD, GROSSLY INACCURATE, MISLEADING

To the Editor:

I read with disbelief Michael Daniels' lead story and editorial in the Sept. 9, 1992 edition of The Citizen. The articles contained several misquotes, inaccuracies, and misleading statements. Michael would have been accurate if he had stated that the boys in SAD 44 have performed and scored lower than the girls within SAD 44. He would have also been correct if he had compared the SAD 44 boys to boys within the state of Maine who have taken the MEA Testing.

However, to state that the "Boys in SAD 44 consistently learn less than their female classmates, according to more than five years of state educational assessment," is absurd. Learning is not measured by taking one written test every four years. Secondly, Michael quoted me as stating that I "denied that there was any significant gap..." My recollection was that when asked on two separate occasions if I was aware of a gender gap, I said "yes" and did note that it appeared to be significant. When asked 'If we were planning any particular program to correct the problem?', I hesitated, wondering how my comment would be misquoted. I responded "no," that we were not responding with any special program, but were looking at the whole testing question and developing strategies to improve all areas of the test results.

However, if one were to select just one specific test to review, let me select last year's SAT test scores for review. The 1991-92 SAT scores are summarized below. The first number is the number of students taking the test, the second number their mean score.

As you can see, in the SATs, the males scored higher than the females.

Michael's use of visualization is very graphic. If SAD 44 were to publish a report with as much graphic disparity, I'm sure of Michael's response. Michael did have a disclaimer at the close of the first cut line to the graphic on page one, but how many readers saw it? The proportions in the illustrations are grossly inaccurate and misleading.

SAD 44 is very aware of the results of the MEA tests. The district has spent considerable time reviewing the test result as one of the methods used to improve the curriculum within the district. In some years, the results are below the state average. Many years have found the results above the state average. During the past few years, we have been designated Star Schools by the State. The Star School designation indicates schools that have shown growth in their achievements.

The district is aware of areas that need improvement. The district is working diligently and consistently to make improvements and adjustments in the curriculum. It is vital to remember that not all learning is delivered by teachers standing in the front of a classroom lecturing to students sitting in straight rows. Not all learning is measured by students taking a paper and pencil test. Learning starts at home and is a cooperative effort between school and home. Learning does not start when a child enters school or stop when they leave high school. Learning is a life long experience.

In closing, if we were to review all of the school related articles written by Michael during his tenure with the Bethel Citizen, what would the ratio (and placement) of positive and accurately upbeat articles be to the sarcastic and misleading articles.

"Ritual and Community: The Maine Grange" an exhibition containing photographs by Rose Marasco of the University of Southern Maine's Art Department, is now at the University of Maine at Farmington's Art Gallery and will continue there until Oct. 22. This exhibition and the public programs associated with it are funded by a major grant from the Maine Humanities Council. Society Director Stanley R. Howe is a participating scholar in history with the project along with Thomas Hubka, participating scholar in architecture.

The exhibition reminds the visitor of the importance the Grange has had for Maine people since the 1870s when the first granges were formed. Since that time membership has declined and risen; although the organization was founded as a farm organization in Washington, DC in 1867, it has continued to exist in many towns with few people engaged in agricultural pursuits. Its survival is remarkable despite the decline of farming; ironically some of the strongest granges today are those nearest larger urban centers.

The Grange was a remarkable organization for the 1860s and 1870s. Women were given equal rights within the Order long before passage of the female suffrage amendment to the U.S. constitution. For many Maine people the Grange was the center of life well into the 1950's; in fact Maine led the nation in the percentage of its population hold membership in the Order.

FROM THE

Bethel Town Office

The members of the Capital Improvement Plan (CIP) Committee asked me to describe their mission for you. The primary responsibilities of the CIP Committee is to warn the selectmen and the Budget Committee of large expenses on the horizon, and to recommend a plan to protect the town from the financial upheaval associated with those large expenses.

The committee will prepare and submit to the selectmen and the Budget Committee two plans. The five year financial plan will provide the detailed information needed for the town to make truly informed decisions about its future. The 20-year plan is more narrative, and should offer some educated guess of what to expect in the future, and options on how to prepare.

The sort of expenses the committee will be dealing with consist mainly of new or replacement buildings, heavy equipment and vehicles. In addition, they will be looking at unique items like purchases of land for sand and gravel and final capping of the landfill. Some examples would be the town garage replacement, the final phase of the treatment plant upgrade, the state mandated salt-sand storage shed, and expansion to or additional fire station. The committee will meet with department heads and inspect town owned facilities, all the while categorizing the condition of currently held assets, and separating the wishful thinking from the necessary purchases.

It is important to note that the CIP Committee will not make the final decisions concerning town purchases. However, the plans they create will be used by the selectmen and the Budget Committee to decide what items of expenditure will be brought to the town meeting for a vote. If you have a purchase or a project that you think will be of benefit to the town, you should by all means submit it, in writing, in detail, to the committee, care of the town office. Please remember these are volunteers, serving the public interest; treat them gently.

BUT THE GIRLS DID GREAT

To the Editor:

In your headline announcing that SAD 44 boys had fallen short in district MEA scores, your newspaper characteristically missed a wonderful opportunity to accentuate the positive and provoke a fascinating exploration into the way our kids react to their schooling. Taken at face value, our scores suggest that this district bucks a national trend in which the level of girls' scholastic achievements drops off the radar screen as they advance through the system.

If this is so, should not the headline in The Citizen have read "SAD 44 Girls Excel!"? If it had, the seeming defensiveness of official explanations for this statistical eccentricity would have been absent. In its place, your readers may have been treated to some interesting and valuable insights by way of explanation. The headline in question, however reminds those of us in the trenches that, in much of our community, essential ingredients for dialogue and cooperative investigation are missing, namely: trust, empathy, respect, goodwill and open minded curiosity. With you, we face not the prospect of partnership but the likelihood of inquisition.

I have taught here long enough to have had some of these tested girls pass through my fourth-grade class. While these students may have to dig deep into the recesses of this paper's inky innards to find this small salute, here it is:

Girls, you did great! Your native abilities, your curiosity, cleverness and persistence continue to set a great challenge to the boys around you. I hope they rise to meet it. (And make no mistake about it--the bright and ambitious among them will be right there with you!) As for you, hold onto your gifts and ambitions and flourish!

Oh, Bethel Citizen, if ever our hopes and dreams for our students should, by God's grace and much sweat and struggle, be realized, it seems you'll be among the last to notice and the most reluctant to applaud.

PARENT WONDERS: MAYBE IT'S NOT JUST MY SON

To the Editor:

As a parent of one of Sad 44's "distinct but sizable subset of local boys," I would like to know what, if anything will be done before my son becomes another less than desirable statistic later in life.

My son has been in the district from the first grade. Over the years I have been given a number of reasons why he doesn't do as well as I would like. At first I believed all I was told, but now I'm beginning to wonder, maybe it's not just my son. What have they been giving as excuses over the years to the parents of other boys?

One of the latest excuses I received was it's the child's responsibility to learn, not the teacher's to make them learn. I want to know when they changed the rules. When I went to school it was the teacher's responsibility to teach. If it's not the teacher's job to teach, then whose is it? Do they just pass out papers and keep the class orderly so the top 50 percent (girls?) can learn? Well, I know from experience that some of them can't even do that.

But as in all cases there are some positive areas. My son has had teachers who have taught him, who have cared if he learned something before he left their class--teachers who should be very proud to call themselves teachers.

To them I say "thank you."

But my son has had his share of teachers who I have had to force to do their jobs, by calling every two weeks to check on my son's progress, by calling meetings to remind them of what they were supposed to be doing for my son. (If I did my job that badly I would be fired) and still I received excuses.

My son is doing better, thanks to a precious few and despite the system. But he is still in the 50 percent at risk. This is just one story and one boy. I wonder what other parents of boys in SAD 44 have to say.

US GUYS NOT THAT SLOW

To the Editor:

We wonder if more gals than guys noticed this: your graphs exaggerated the differences in learning achievements. It would help us slower ones keep things in perspective if you would print another version of your front page summary graphs, with the base line at zero rather than 100. (Unfortunately, such "false bottom" graphs have come into widespread use). Your numbers and words were very clear. They carry an important message which mustn't be ducked. But since learning today comes increasingly from visual images, it's more helpful in seeing the whole picture to not have the bottom cut off.

Good news: our gals are above the state average in every category but one! Bad news: that one is writing skills. Some of us had the experience of writing a significant paper every week, which was painstakingly corrected, graded and returned. A few of us also have seen the writing of many Telstar graduates. Reading and discussing novels may be fun and popular, but it just doesn't cut it when you're otherwise ready to go out and earn your way.

I was on the Bethel and SAD 44 school boards for many years and saw the closing of many small schools for some good reasons. The children who, on average, scored consistently most above their grade level were taught, all grades in one room, by your Greenwood City correspondent, Colista Morgan. For those who don't know her: After you read the storm kicked up by Mike Daniels' bold and valuable editorial, ease into a more peaceful world by reading her column.

The Citizen replies:

The Citizen stands behind the accuracy of last week's article and of its reporting of past conversations with Supt. Craig on the SAD 44 "gender gap."

We agree fully with the superintendent that much learning takes place outside the classroom and in ways not measured by achievement tests. But platitudes such as "learning is a life long experience" should not be used to obscure the fact that an essential core of learning does take place (or is expected to take place) in the classroom and can in fact be measured by standardized tests. It is the latter form of learning that district taxpayers are paying for--not some nebulous experiential knowledge that conveniently cannot be measured.

And we have no doubt that the district can trot out any number of individual tests which fail to reveal any evidence of a gender gap, or that even show boys performing better than girls.

But the superintendent's selection of a sample test to demonstrate gender equity is very curious. He chooses the Scholastic Aptitude Test, which is hardly representative of all students in a given class, since many of the lower performing students don't take the SATs.

And who took the SAT he selects? The Telstar Guidance Office informs us that the test in question was taken primarily by Telstar's class of 1992. And it happens that that class, according to their earlier MEA test reports, was 57 percent male and 43 percent female.

And which of these students felt their experience in SAD 44 had qualified them for bigger and better things? Look at the numbers: 25 girls to only 18 boys. No gender gap, of course.

If the superintendent's own selection suggests a gender gap, the MEAs confirm one on a much broader scale. The MEAs are given to all students at three class levels and have been administered since 1985--and they reveal a persistent gender gap in the district, a gender gap that goes far, far beyond anything that could be shrugged off as a fluke of random distribution.

The superintendent terms as "absurd" the conclusion that "Boys in SAD 44 consistently learn less than their female classmates, according to more than five years of state educational assessment." We, however, do not see how anyone looking at the numbers could come to any other rational conclusion. Rather than being "absurd," it seems "unavoidable."

As to the illustrations, we are delighted that the superintendent finds them "very graphic"--that was the intent. But they certainly do not systematically distort (as he seems to imply) the difference in boys' and girls' scores. The caveat on the front page graph referred only to the fact that with the software used to produce the graphs we could not get the tops of the figures' heads to line up precisely with the correct level on vertical score axis. But we got as close as we could on all the individual figures, and any distortion remaining in the graphs is minor and random.

If in calling the illustrations "grossly inaccurate and misleading" the superintendent is referring to the fact that the figures tend to expand or contract proportionately in a second dimension as they go up or down on the score axis, we would only reply that we fully accept the education establishment's oft-repeated argument that the multifarious dimensions of one's life all expand or contract accordingly with one's early mastery of the basic elementary and secondary school curriculums--especially reading and writing. (Perhaps in that regard the graph figures were even more revealing than we intended--an interesting metaphor, but we'll spare the reader any further elaboration.)

The superintendent concludes by challenging the tenor of this writer's coverage of the SAD 44 school system. We will only reply that, as the superintendent well knows, it is not the function of a newspaper to engage in blind boosterism of local institutions. Recognition is certainly provided when recognition is due, and The Citizen devotes considerable space to such (as the superintendent has himself acknowledged at at least one school board meeting).

But the essential responsibility of the press is to report what the community needs to know--whether or not that information is agreeable to the institutional powers that be.

In short, the superintendent's letter belabors last week's article from all sides (including that old standby, blaming the messenger), but when the smoke has cleared we fail to see that he has discredited any of its major evidence or refuted its conclusions.

We believe there is now more than enough evidence that something very disturbing is occurring in the education of boys in SAD 44. This problem would have lain buried away in file cabinets had The Citizen not reported it--but we are sure its consequences are being played out every day in the real life of the SAD 44 community.

As always, we trust interested readers will evaluate the evidence for themselves and draw their own conclusions.

*****

We agree with Ted Chadbourne that the local writing results are worrisome, but in recent years a lot of effort has gone into improving this area, and the results have lately been showing, especially with the younger classes. (Which shows what happens when the district acknowledges a problem and targets resources at resolving it.) We also concur wholeheartedly that Colista Morgan is essential reading, and we would point out that her columns are fine models for aspiring young writers (see her column in the Sept. 2 Citizen for a description of teaching in a small country schoolhouse).

We disagree with Mr. Chadbourne, however, on the matter of the so-called "false bottom" on the graphs. The scoring range on the test is in fact from 100 to 400 (not 0 to whatever), and that range was shown fully on all the graphs. Since a student with no correct answers receives a 100 on the test, 100 is a real, not a false, bottom when illustrating the test results.

Finally, we certainly agree with Leonard Hoy that local girls have done extremely well on the MEA testing (as the graphs dramatically show)--but last week's article was about the boys.

Correction--WES/AES gaps

Readers examining the fourth-grade results in last week's article were no doubt confused. The body of the article reported that the five-year gender gap at Woodstock Elementary School was 24 points and the four-year (fifth-year data were not available) gap at Andover Elementary School was insignificant. The accompanying graph, however, reversed those figures.

That graph was correct (insignificant gap at WES, 24-point gap at AES); the body copy had it backwards. The Citizen apologizes for any confusion.

vote. He asked for a recount and it was approved as an agenda item.

Merton Brown chided the board for their unwillingness to discuss the issue.

"I feel it is up to us to respond to the complaints of the constituents," Brown said. "I've spent hours on the phone with people about this and I find it distressing that some in this room find democracy cumbersome."

Newry director Alison Aloisio had said earlier she was against rehashing an issue that was decided on after lengthy debate months ago.

"At this point if we let everyone come back and ask us to reconsider earlier decisions, I think it would be chaotic," Aloisio said.

Rolfe had also said earlier she'd heard enough complaints to warrant discussing the issue again.

"I think the protest of this fee just shows us we cannot continue to put the budget on the backs of taxpayers with taxes and fees," Rolfe said.

But Andover director Brad Thibodeau countered, "If you don't want taxpayers or users fees to pay for it who will. There's no on else."

Rolfe said she would not debate where the funds should come from.

"We thrashed this issue at length last spring and we owe it to the administrators to stick by it," Thibodeau said later. "If we made a bad decision, we can thrash it out again during budget season. It's not a life and death issue."

The move to eliminate the fee was overwhelmingly defeated.

Bethel directors Rolfe, Merton Brown and Cheryl Eliot and Woodstock director Kay McDonnell voted to get rid of the fee. Newry director Audrey Brooke was the only director absent Monday night.

Saturday detention

Sports fees were not the only hotly debated issue Monday night.

Merton Brown said he was opposed to the administration's decision to pay teachers to supervise Saturday detention.

"The administration at the high school made the decision to do Saturday detentions," Brown said. "I think the jury is still out on the effectiveness of Saturday detention, but it disturbs me to find out that this district is going to pay someone to come in and handle detention for three hours. We pay our administrators enough money to do Saturday detention. We don't have to pay anyone else to do Saturday detention."

Brown said in his job as Bethel town clerk he is required to work nights and weekends, and questioned the decision to pay teachers to cover Saturday detention instead of requiring salaried administrators to do it.

Brown asked Craig if there was something in the administrators contracts that would prevent them from working Saturdays.

"I would not say that I would interpret my contract to say that I would be required to work Saturdays, Sundays and nights," was the only response from Craig.

Assistant Principal Carroll Higgins said one detention attendant would be paid $30 each Saturday for the three-hour period. He said about 10 teachers had volunteered for the duty.

"You mean volunteered to get paid," Brown quipped.

Rolfe said she was also opposed to paying teachers for the service.

"You're going to charge kids for sports," she said, "and pay teachers for detention. That's what the people are going to see."

Greenwood director Marcel Polak asked if it would be possible to require the students in Saturday detention to pay for their supervision.

Craig said the district's lawyer had recently said if would be difficult to force students to pay for detention costs.

No further action was taken on the issue.

Brown on negotiations committee

In other business Monday night, the board entered into a half-hour executive session to decide who would be the third member of the board's negotiation committee.

No one volunteered for the committee earlier this year. Chairman Margaret Hand had appointed Merton Brown, Edleen Winslow and Susan Gordon to the committee. Brown asked to be reassigned. He said his regular board and Bethel town clerk duties already require much of his time.

But following the meeting Brown said he had reluctantly agreed to serve on the negotiations committee.

"I am a member of the negotiations committee because no other board member was willing to replace me as the chairman's appointee," Brown said. "There was nobody else that would do it."

N.M.

The state trooper who investigated the accident was unavailable for comment Tuesday. Harold "Buster" Gaudreau, who towed the vehicle from the scene, estimated the truck's damage at about $5,000. The truck's hood buckled and the front end was badly dented.

SAD 44 Transportation Director Richard "Sonny" Blake said damage to the bus was minimal and the approximately 15 passengers on board were uninjured.

"The bus has been fixed and is ready for the road now," Blake said. "There was a dent in the back and the exhaust pipe was pushed ahead."

This is the second accident involving a Newry bus in less than a year.

Last December, Pam Conkright's bus was sideswiped by a fully loaded pulp truck as the bus was stopped to let off a passenger at the intersection of the Wheeler Road and Route 26 in Newry. No one was seriously injured in that accident either.

Car fire at WES

There was also some minor excitement at Woodstock Elementary School last week.

WES students were evacuated from the building last Wednesday afternoon when a car caught on fire at the main entrance.

WES Principal Frank Boynton said the car ignited outside his office window, as student where preparing to board afternoon buses.

"There really wasn't any danger," he said, "It never got that serious, but it was very close to the building. We couldn't let the students go past the car to get to the buses. We put all the kids out back in the soccer field and moved all the buses out of the way. They were probably kept there for 20 minutes."

Bus driver Larry Coffin got the blaze under control initially with one of the school's fire extinguishers.

Woodstock Fire Chief Bill Seames said his men finished dousing the flames. "They had it pretty much out with a fire extinguisher when we got there," he said. The car was owned by Bertha Grover of Rowe Hill, Seames said.

Boynton commended the students and staff for their speedy evacuation of the school.

REACH SUPPORT GROUP

REACH, the Rape Education and Crisis Hotline serving Oxford County, will begin a support group in the Bethel/Rumford area in October for adult survivors of incest and childhood sexual abuse.

Interviews for participants will be scheduled throughout the month of September. The group is facilitated by staff of REACH who are also survivors. There is no charge for participants.

Survivors of incest and childhood sexual abuse typically have problems with self-esteem, establishing healthy relationships and feeling that the world is a safe and nurturing place. A support group gives individuals an opportunity to explore issues such as guilt, shame, fears, depression, self-abuse, anger, disclosures, intimacy, self-esteem, relationships and moving on.

REACH encourages each person to develop their own path to recovery. Besides talking, possible options include use of art, writing, body work, reading, photographs, meditation and speaking out.

For more information, please call 743-9777. Group size is limited.

From the Bethel Police log:

Main Street scenes: campfire blazes, police cruiser sinks

Thursday night, Officer Darren Tripp responded to a report of a car disabled on lower Main Street.

Darren Cross of Locke Mills told police that while he was driving down Main Street near the Sudbury Inn, a large area of road collapsed under his vehicle. Across told police he got his vehicle out of the hole, but then heard a grinding noise under the left front wheel. Tripp advised him to report the incident to the town office.

Tripp then went to get barricades to close off the street. On his return, he reported parking the cruiser about 50 feet from the washed out area when it "immediately sank up to the frame." Tripp was able to free the cruiser with no apparent damage. He then notified Bethel fire and ambulance services that the road was closed.

Tripp's report said heavy rains had probably washed out the soil a foot below the construction site surface, but left the topsoil intact.

Wednesday evening a Main Street resident told police there was a "campfire" burning in front of the Kennett Realty building. Police spoke to two juveniles who said they had not started the fire, which was almost out. The youths did give police the names of two other subjects who they said started the fire.

In other police news last week, late Tuesday night police responded to a report of fireworks at the Bethel Inn. Police talked to two subjects on the inn's golf course who displayed a valid permit for fireworks.

Friday morning a Bethel Inn employee reported that a mountain bike had done $150 damage to the inn's 13th hole.

Burglaries

Greenwood during the same six month periods--19 burglaries in 1991 and only one in 1992.

Herrick said a rash of break-ins in Greenwood and Woodstock camps, along the shores of the towns' lakes and ponds, was responsible for several of the burglaries during the first six months of 1991.

In Newry, residents reported one more burglary the first six months of this year than in the same time period last year--up from four to five.

Burglaries during the same time where also up in Andover--from none to three.

Bethel police officers responded to 21 burglaries during the first six months of last year and to 11 burglaries in the same six months this year.

Bethel Police Chief Dale Bellmen said he think's burglaries have dropped in town because his men are more visible.

"We're on the road more and we're doing more property checks," Bellmen said. "People are filing more house-watch forms. No one knows when we're going to be there to check the houses and we check them more than once a night."

Fever Blisters: Half of Adults Affected

Fever blisters or "cold sores" are fluid-filled blisters that occur on or around the lip or nose. Blisters result from contact with a contagious virus referred to as type 1 herpes simplex virus. The virus, which enters the body most often by way of the mouth or nose, typically infects children before the age of five.

Blisters may or may not occur for many years. The virus lives in nerve tissue and triggers infections (blister formations) during periods of stress or reduced resistance to infection. Typically, blisters become encrusted and heal within one to two weeks without leaving a scar. One reference indicates that about half of all Americans age 20 to 40 have experienced at least one fever blister infection.

While fever blisters cannot be cured or prevented, nonprescription medicines help relieve pain and protect the skin. Protectants such as allantoin, cocoa butter, glycerin, and shark liver oil in emollient creams may help soften blisters and prevent cracking of the skin or crust. Products containing local anesthetics such as benzocaine, lidocaine, camphor, and menthol may reduce lip and nose pain. The Handbook of Nonprescription Drugs suggests that those who "associate cold sores with sun exposure may benefit from the application of a sunscreen or ultraviolet ray blocker in the form of a lipstick."

Congressional delegates square off

By WENDY HANSCOM

U.S. Rep. Olympia J. Snowe and Democratic challenger Patrick McGowan traded verbal jabs at an appearance Saturday before the fall conference of the Maine Press Association at the Bethel Inn.

The two congressional hopefuls were joined by independent Green Party member Jonathan Carter, who is also vying for the 2nd district Representative seat, and, by 1st district Republican nominee Linda Bean. Bean's opponent U.S. Rep. Democrat Thomas Andrews was unable to attend.

The 90-minute program was for the most part a sedate rehash of the candidates' positions on subjects such as health care, the economy, off-shore drilling and U.S. military intervention abroad.

Snowe and McGowan did use the opportunity to take a few swipes at each other.

During discussion of each of the candidates views on the governmental regulation of abortion, which Snowe and McGowan both oppose, Snowe scolded McGowan for saying he would make a better advocate for women rights than she would.

"That's exactly what men have been telling women for 200 years--and look where it's gotten us," she said.

But McGowan took exception to Snowe's "pro-choice" stance, which conflicts with the Republican party platform.

"You can't be a pro-choice supporter in the morning and a George Bush supporter in the afternoon," he said. "It just doesn't hold up in 1992, when women are losing their rights by the hour."

But Snowe said electing more women to Congress would strengthen women's rights.

Health care

Carter and McGowan both said they favored a single payer health care system.

Carter argued that although a single-payer health plan would increase taxes, people would pay less out-of-pocket expenses.

"The average person would no longer be enslaved to their health care system," Carter said, "afraid to change jobs because they risk losing their coverage."

McGowan told the journalists of a benefit supper he attended for a man in his home town of Canaan who had been injured in a mill accident.

"I would rather see us have a benefit supper for the Emir of Kuwait," he said, "and have a health care plan for everybody in the U.S."

Bean called for consumer based reform and the privatization of the Medicaid program. "Prices are skyrocketing," she said, "and patients are receiving second-rate care."

The economy

During a discussion of the economy, Carter accused the government of neglecting the needs of small businessmen.

"We gone big and sold out to big business," Carter said. "We need to support small businesses."

McGowan touted himself as a small businessman ready to help other small business owners. He and his wife run a general store in Canaan.

McGowan said many "talk the talk" but he could "walk the walk" needed to help small business.

Snowe said she supported tax credits for small business owners.

All the candidates said they opposed off-shore oil drilling in the Grand Banks.

Bean, McGowan and Carter also endorsed congressional term limits, while Snowe said her experience in Congress benefits Maine, whose delegation might otherwise go unheard.

Before the forum adjourned, Bean asked the media to report fairly on the campaign. She criticized the Portland Press Herald, which she said used a picture of her and Andrews during a heated exchange on television Friday to draw attention to a story about the L.L. Bean sporting goods store fielding negative calls about her candidacy.

Bean is the granddaughter of the founder of the L.L. Bean store in Freeport.

Bethel board rejects Newry trash

By DUANE HAYES

Bethel selectmen decided last week not to negotiate with the town of Newry for the joint use of Bethel's proposed solid waste transfer station.

The transfer station will be located near the town's landfill on Route 2, which must be closed to domestic refuse by the end of the year, according to Town Manager Madeline Henley. Henley said the transfer station should be completed by mid-October.

Henley said selectmen voted 3-2 Tuesday not to negotiate with neighboring Newry because the majority of the board sees the new transfer station as a temporary measure.

She said selectmen expect the town will eventually move toward townwide trash collection, which would eliminate the need for the transfer station.

"The selectmen aren't convinced (the transfer station) is the way to go" for a long-term resolution for the town's solid waste disposal, Henley said.

She said selectmen were concerned that the more towns that are allowed to use the transfer station "the harder it is for us to walk away from the transfer station."

Under Bethel's plan, waste will be taken to the transfer station and then trucked to a yet-unknown disposal site. Henley said the town is currently talking with officials of a Bethlehem, N.H. landfill, the regional waste incinerator in Auburn, and the Norway-Paris Solid Waste Inc.

Henley said she expects solid waste disposal to cost more with the closure of the landfill "so we'd like to use the landfill for as long as we possibly can."

Henley said Bethel officials will allow the town of Hanover to use the transfer station. Unlike Newry, the small town currently uses Bethel's landfill for the disposal of domestic refuse, Henley said.

Agnes Gray School

By MARTA CLEMENTS

The second week of school has arrived so quickly! My format this year is going to change somewhat. I plan to address the highlights of the week, inform you of upcoming events and dates, and include the activities of one class in each column. Please feel free to let me know of any particular items you would like to see in this column.

Last week when I introduced the new staff members that we are welcoming to our school, I neglected to include our new supervising principal, Mrs. Judy Potter. Mrs. Potter is now the principal for our school, the Mildred Fox School and the Hebron Elementary School. She is replacing Bruce Garrow, who has accepted a position in Vermont. Mrs. Potter has taught for several years in SAD 17, and has been a principal within the district as well. We are pleased to have her working with us. We welcome her aboard!

Since I did not corner another teacher for news this week, I will begin with my own fifth-grade class. The highlight of this week involved one activity from when my class was in fourth-grade and on their field trip to Augusta last June.

Dana Hanley, who was then a representative, met the group and gave them a guided tour of both the House of Representatives and the Senate. At one point they met Governor McKernan. Mr. Hanley arranged for the class to have their picture taken with Mr. McKernan. Mr. Hanley had copies made up for each student, and Governor McKernan autographed one personally to each child. This week Mr. Hanley delivered the pictures in person. This will be a souvenir to remember, a part of their very own history.

My class and I are a bit disappointed this year, because we have not found any monarch butterflies or caterpillars. We are still studying their life cycle and migration, but it's not quite the same without our cages full of larvae and pupae. This has happened once before, and we will be studying to find out why this butterfly is so difficult to find this year.

I am continuing with poetry this year, and we have started by each learning a verse or two of Casey At the Bat by Ernest Lawrence Thayer. The first unit in our basal reader is all stories written by Sid Fleischman and they are fun. We began by reading his novel, The Whipping Boy. This is the story of Prince Brat and the common boy who had to suffer the prince's punishments. We have set a goal to read at least 10 books by early November.

Parents, one new idea I am trying this year involves a red folder. My students are bringing home a red folder every afternoon, and they are bringing it back to school every morning. This folder is particularly for homework, finished papers, notices and handouts, etc. Students are supposed to show the folder to their parents every day. The children are to be responsible for their homework, and the parents are to take charge of the notices and handouts. Parents are encouraged to use the folder to send material back to me also. Let's see if this will help to keep us all better informed! Thanks from Mrs. C.!

So. Woodstock

By OLIVE R. DAVIS

Esther Davis invited Olive Davis to ride to her hometown Saturday afternoon, so we went to Jay, Livermore Falls, Canton, etc. to visit with her sisters and husbands and brother Donald Brown who is in the Pomeroy Hill Nursing Home. the sisters and husband were Martha and Clyde Hinds, Emerly Pike, who was at the nursing home visiting relatives and rode home with us, Marion and Jim Whittemore.

At the September meeting of the Historical Society, Gary Inman will talk about Channel IV. The Historical Museum is a treasure house in Woodstock of the town.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews flew the northern route to Eugene, Ore. Friday, Aug. 28, for a week's visit with their oldest son, Gary Andrews and family who lives there now. They will be home Sept. 4.

Larry Billings has given some prints and a tin to the Historical Museum. The museum will be closing soon. Thanks to all who have watched it and those who have visited. Your support is appreciated.

Esther Davis took Vera Buck and Olive Davis grocery shopping thursday. On Wednesday, Esther and Olive were in Auburn for a doctor's appointment. Friday we were in Norway again to a doctor for me. Esther Davis has our sincere thanks for her help she gives us daily. I can't say that too often.

I lost my lights Thursday. The pole in front of my house fuse had fallen out. The electric crew have been clearing the bushes from the Curtis Hill Road, under the lines. They also fixed their lines in the Andrews Road area. The crew came back at six or so to correct the trouble. Hurrah! Lights again.

East Stoneham

By ELEANOR NELSON

The Stoneham Fire Dept. was called out Monday noon to a fire on the Hunt' Corner Road where a Bethel couples' recreational vehicle (a 1982 Fleetwood valued at $12,000) caught fire. Stoneham Rescue was also at the scene. The couple, George and Sandra Wight lost a stereo, television, bedding, clothing, camera and much more in the fire. Faulty wiring in the dash was suspected as the cause.

The Maine State crew has put in a new culvert and catch basin across the road in front of the East Stoneham Country Store. Hopefully the big bump in the road will get smoothed down soon.

The Knight Riders Snowmobile Club met at the Stoneham Fire Station on Tuesday with a good turn out of members at 7 p.m. with Eben Harmon presiding. Plans for the Landowners Appreciation Day for Sunday was discussed. This is a yearly event with a cook-out with steaks and chicken barbeque as the main meal with salads, desserts, etc. for landowners and members of the club which is held at the Club House behind the Fire Station. Bill Hunt spoke at length about several trails which will have to be re-routed and the signs to be taken up in the spring and bridges to be 12 feet wide and the trails to be wider for the necessary grooming to be done. Many changes are seen for the future of snowmobiling. Plans for a Booster Club plan was discussed as a fundraiser which should be ready at the October meeting with drawings to start at the November meeting. March 1 is the date for the Montana trip.

Lawrence and Mildred Dadmun are at home after being away awhile camping at the Basins.

Frances and Bob Grant have been camping at Papoose Pond Camp Resort for a few days.

Grace Nelson has been having some repair work done on her home. Skip Durante and Peggy McKeen has been doing the work.

Our sympathy is extended to Helen Grover and family in the loss of her brother, Donald McAllister, Sr. of Norway who passed away recently.

Antiques are still the mainstay of the local museum collection. Donate good items to these institutions and collect the best you can yourself. Learn from exhibits of better antiques. Also, collections are best when things go together. Conservation Camp toured the historical museum recently. Saturday, Dept. 12 will be the last Saturday the Historical Museum will be open until spring. Saturday evening is the Historical Society's meeting.

Franklin Grange #124 met on Monday night Sept. 7 with Agriculture Commissioner Carl Brooks, Harris Hathaway and Richard Felt putting on the program. Twenty-nine members were present. Anna Swan, new lecturer, gave her report of the N.E. Lecturers Conference. Loretta Hall filled in as chaplain. Special guests, Myrtle and Lewis Bisbee, Harry Boyer and Loretta Hall were welcomed. Voted to send Russell Yates and Peggy Blake to Maine State Grange in Augusta. Bertha Flanders is home from the hospital and Bea Lang is a patient at CMMC, Lewiston. Herman Cole is confined with the flu.

The Program was: Solo, Bertha Benoit "The First Thing I Do Every Morning." Maine State program for June by lecturer; song by all; The November program; Song "State of Maine" by all. Dot Canwell played a piano solo; "Old Times On The Farm" by Harris Hathaway.

In 1917 there were 115 horses, 335 cows and 33 oxen in the town of Woodstock. Sweet corn was the prime crop in those days for the corn shop "Fernald, Keene and True" here in town. Sheep and poultry were also abundant. By 1936 there were only half as many animals but they were twice the value of 1917. By 1960, 324 cows and 5,195 poultry. Cows were triple the value, hens one half the value. Now you may have any quantity of cattle or hens and are not taxed at all. Richard Felt told a story about the livery stable, also stories from old town reports; solo by Harry Boyer, Dot playing; "Blacksmithing trade" by Lewis Bisbee. Lewis was 16 years old when he learned this trade. When he was married his wife, Myrtle assisted him. They had this business for 6 or 7 years. $5 per pair then and $100 a pair of shoes for a horse to be shod now; Richard Felt told about another blacksmith; Dot Canwell whistled; Carl Brooks Harry Walder's column 1817 Farmers sold out and went to Ohio because it was so cold here that year. $1.20 for cows and $2.88 for a colt. "1800 and froze to death" was a saying coined during this very cold period of time; Story about horses being shod Peggy Blake; Story about popcorn Anna Swan: Closing thought and closing song by all. Next meeting will be gentlemen's night, Sept. 21.

The Woodstock Extension will meet on Wednesday, Sept. 16 at the town annex at 10:30 a.m. Brown bag lunch; program working on Holiday Open House.

Upton

By ARLINE BERNIER

Those who missed the supper at the Ladies' Aid Fair missed a good meal. A variety of casseroles and dishes was brought in by many of the locals and part-time residents and served buffet style. Various raffles were drawn including an impromptu gift of a bottle of wine.

The tables included a lovely display of jewelry and novelties and other bead handwork by Margaret Mitchell, a jewelry table presided over by Pauline Lavallee, a baked goods table by Elsie Fuller, the fancy table of needlework made by members through the summer and ceramic and other crafts of Lucille Largess and Simonne Lavallee. The kids had a special corner presided over by Tammy Grondin. Terry Beauchesne worked at the fancy work table. The music by Tim Hanson and Amy and Kathy was a delightful addition to the Fair and much enjoyed. The weather was decent for the event and we might not have needed the newly purchased tent, but will have it for the future.

Carl Hansen, a candidate for State Senate mingled with the crowd and chatted with several about his ideas and ideals concerning Maine government. Rockie Graham, a candidate for State Representative distributed cards listing the State Fairs for the season and talked with those attending.

Elderwood Manor

By FLORENCE HALL

Mr. and Mrs. Norman White and Florence Hall attended the wedding and reception of Guy Hall and Mary Cooper. Rev. Albert Buzzell was the minister.

Callers at Florence Hall's over the weekend were Stephen and Donna Hall, son Glenn and girlfriend Leah Kay, Georgia; Howard and Linda Marston, Phippsburg and Alfred Marston, South Portland.

Louise Powell, Hale, Bernice Wing, Dixfield, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Knox and daughter, Miranda called on Alma Hewey.

Betsy York, South Paris and Nancy Fox had supper with Anne Fox on Sunday.

Bus riders form the Manor on Tuesday were Gertrude Hutchins and Elizabeth Sennett.

By COLISTA MORGAN

I have just finished reading, "Where are the years" by Orpha Coleman. The lines tell of joyous years of childhood, sparkling years of maturity and hard work. I thought about these lines for I just added another year.

Where are the years? They are gone, you say? They have receded into the past; they are lost to us forever? No, they are not lost, nor have they fled. They are still with us. They are character, principles, ideals; they are the component parts of our today. What are the years? WE are the years.

One morning this week in the chamber of stillness, I watched the messenger of dawn pull back the curtain of night, put the stars to bed and open the door of the east to the monarch in the sky. It marched dazzling in all its glory to welcome another day. A time to catch the beauty of a sunny, cloudless sky.

Flying past are the Dragon Flies with the purplish bodies. They blunder under leaves and swerve above the pond flowers. What interesting insects they are. No other insect has keener eyes for seeing or stronger wings for flying. Each compound eye is made up of 30,000 little six sided "eyes" or lenses; and each wing is as firm and perfect as the wing of an airplane. Like an airplane wing the dragon fly's wing does not fold up. This is only a bit of its interest.

There's something about September that sets it apart from other months. There are days of mellow heat when a soft, blue haze hovers over the fields and brows of hills; there are starlit nights, crisp, when chill breezes sweep through the fields and pastures.

Chipmunks scamper along the walls, building up caches of food against the time of cold. Along country roads sumacs hold their scarlet banners aloft, and in fence corners wild blue asters lift their beauty to the sun.

It's a time of quiet waiting. Gone now is the hurry of summer and the impatience of developing maturity. Mornings are cool and the atmosphere warms slowly.

When September's mellowness blesses the countryside, flocks of goldfinches swirl over the landscape and gather at the feeders. The ladies are dressed in subdued gray-green hues, but the mister is a jaunty handsome fellow in a bright gold coat. His wings and tail are glossy black with white bars; he wears a black cap at a rakish angle on his forehead. They are often called Thistlebirds for this soft down of the thistle is used for their nest and they eat the seeds. Second only to the bob-o-link's music is the rollicking gayhearted singing of the goldfinches. I have many of them at my feeders at the present time.

When September blesses the land, there come the concerts of the Katydid. There is an old saying, "The first real frost comes six weeks after the night criers begin their singing. But with all respect for the saying through generations the country people have grown a bit skeptical of the katydid's prophesying ability.

When frost comes, Katydid sings his final song and it is an au revoir to summer and a hail to autumn.

***

I have worked hours outside this week, cutting blackberry bushes and others, also pulling and trying to destroy the pink jewel-weed which is rapidly taking over my land. It belongs to the touch-me-not family. the ripe seed pods pop at a touch. They grow to five feet tall. They are correctly named, but enough is enough.

After church yesterday, I was at the farm with most of the family at home. David helped me with a few chores at my home and helped his father at the farm. Fay had prepared a real country boiled dinner, plus desserts, so we were "stuffed" and happy.

Debbie Piccerillo and little daughter, Lisa, visited us. Fran has gone to Florida to help the victims of Hurricane Andrew.

Max Pulsifer is harvesting his garden and sharing with his neighbors.

Each day now, the Inmans are getting settled into their home. They have their water in and much more. I'm glad to welcome them for my neighbors.

The Forgets were at their cottage over the weekend.

By MIRIAM INMAN

Newton and Joyce Lamb attended the church service last Sunday at the Eleanor B. Forbes Chapel at Ferry Beach.

Spending the long holiday weekend at Cathedral Pines in Eustis were Vince and Beverly Stevens, Stacey and Darcy; DeeDee Chase, Vance and Connie Bacon; Stan and Maxine Crane, Carmen Hadley and Eldith Lang.

Ivan and Ann Proctor and Ivan, Jr. were at their trailer on Stoney Brook, Stratton for the past weekend.

Vicky Sanborn, Brant and Caroline from North Conway, N.H. spent the weekend with her parents, Vernon and Miriam Inman.

On Sunday it was planned to climb Bald Face Mt. in Chatham, N.H. Those making the hike were Walter Inman, Vernie and Walter, Jr., Marshall and Susan Inman, Denise Inman, Paul and Luke, Vernon Inman and Brant Sanborn. Some braved the frigid water and went for a swim in Emerald Pool. Grampa Vern and grandson Brant, 4 years old, were the oldest and youngest. Grampa Vern climbed this mountain about 60 years ago for the first time. They were in search of topaz and some did find some.

On Tuesday Newton and Joyce Lamb visited the Stanley Steamer Museum in Kingfield. They were accompanied by their daughter, Peggy Lamb and John Beane.

On Thursday a get together dinner was held with Newton and Joyce at their home. Those present were Jean Gilbert of Turner, Richard and Ethelyn Turner of So. Paris and Sayward and Cynthia Lamb from North Pond.

There will be an organizational meeting of the West Paris Alumni Association on Thursday, Sept. 17 at 7 p.m. at the Oxford Bank meeting room here in town. Anyone interested in helping is welcome to attend.

The West Paris Historical Society will meet on Monday, Sept. 21 for a 6 p.m. potluck supper followed by the business meeting. DeeDee Chase and Joyce Lamb will be on supper committee. The tape of the "Old Fashioned Vaudeville" will be enjoyed after the meeting. At the last meeting it was reported that we had a real good response to the letters and profit from the show. We voted to have the roof painted before winter.

We are saddened by the loss of our good friend and neighbor Ole Olson, Jr. Much sympathy is extended to his widow and family.

School has started again and the hot, humid weather arrived. That is what usually happens. Maybe we'll have some summer weather now for awhile.

Vernon and I were very pleasantly honored with a party at our camp to celebrate our 45th wedding anniversary on Saturday the 22nd. Thanks go to our children and their families for planning such a nice time. On Tuesday the 25th we took a trip to New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia. We returned home on Saturday, Sept. 5.

Andover

By KAREN McKAY

On Aug. 26, Mrs. Anthony Poole and daughter Medea of Oakley, Cal. left Andover after visiting a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Emerson, Sr. for New Haven, Ct. where Medea will enter Yale University as a freshman. Mrs. Poole will return to Oakley, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Barnett of Ann Arbor, Mich. left Sept. 6 to return home after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Emerson. Floyd Emerson , Sr. returned home after being a surgical patient at Rumford Community Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill J. Barnett, Jr. and son Justin of Ann Arbor, Mich, arrived Sept. 5 to spend a week visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Emerson, Sr. On Sept. 9. They spent the day in Boothbay harbor, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Emerson and children.

Montgomery Merryman recently returned home after being a surgical patient in a Portland Hospital.

Merton Palmer, a former Andover resident, is a patient in CMMC in Lewiston.

The elementary school would like to welcome all new students arriving this fall. Those attending kindergarten include Micheal Brown, Alexa Burgi, Daniel Chenery, Frank Emerson, Jasmine Fyrberg, Lacey Gammon, Alyssa Holmquist, Joel Lincoln, Matthew Mills, Jessica Morin, Thomas Scotti, Clayton Smith and Joshua Longway. New to the area and attending classes are Evan Lincoln-third grade, of the Sawyer Brook Road; Mahala Thibodeau-first grade, of North Andover; Brad MacPherson-second grade, who resides on Main Street; and Amy Green who lives on the So. Arm Road and will be enrolled in fifth grade. Jean Gardner is the new first grade teacher transferring from Woodstock, and Charles Plummer returns this year as the school's principal. Hoping all students and teachers have an enjoyable year.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Meisner held a family gathering at their Howard Pond camp over the Labor Day weekend. Those attending include Mr. and Mrs. Herchel Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sifakis of Ashburnham, Mass., Howard Glover of Dixfield, Mr. and Mrs. Marlan Dyment and children of Rumford and Gary Meisner of Augusta. Other weekend callers were Carlton Hall and Kim Ledger of Rindge, N.H.

The Historical Society has 1993 calendars available. Each month has a different old local scene. The calendars which sell for $3 each are available from any Historical Society member, at Mill's Market, or from Beverly Swan 392-4742.

Calvary Congregational Church

Sunday worship service opened with a piano prelude by Betsy Cornwell with the call to worship song by Chuck Cornwell and Muriel Curtiss "Gracious Spirit Dwell with Me." Muriel sang a selection with the guitar.

Responsive reading was led by Scott Farrington on ones' "Dedicated Service." Junior church was led by Marge Stinson today.

Rev. Duane Waite's message: "Diligent Laborers." Romans 15:14-32 Refreshments and fellowship followed the service.

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary will meet Monday, Oct. 28 at 6:30 p.m. at the fire station. The Auxiliary put on two dinners for the Senior Citizens this month, the Woodstock group on Thursday, Sept. 3, and the Bethel group on Wednesday, Sept. 9. Both were held at the Greenwood Town Hall. The Western Maine Firemen's Association supper will also be held this month, put on by the Auxiliary, at the fire station. The two dinners brought in about $335. All those who participated in any way were appreciated.

My apologies for not having news in for a couple weeks.

Donna Downs spent Monday night and Tuesday visiting Lorraine and John Mills. On Tuesday, Donna and Lorraine visited Donna's mother, Elvira Littlehale at Market Square Health Facility, So. Paris. Donna and husband, Ted, have moved to Pembroke, N.H. But Donna has one more year of schooling at MVTI in Berlin, N.H. and also trains at Sunday River, so she is spending the weekends in Pembroke, Monday night with us and is at Sunday River Tuesdays and then she spends the rest of the week with friends in Berlin, N.H. while she goes to school. It makes life a little complicated and hectic but as the saying goes "one's gotta do what one's gotta do."

Crystal Chase, who, incidently, turned 18 on Sept. 11, is attending NHTC in Stratham, N.H. She is taking medical occupation and is living at Apt. 8B, Garfield Court, Exeter, N.H. 03833. She is the daughter of John and Leatrice Chase of Howe Hill. We all hope she had a good birthday and enjoys her college year.

Lorraine Mills and Gerry Shimamura were in Lewiston, Auburn, Livermore Falls and Farmington Thursday. Gerry visited a friend at the Franklin Memorial Hospital in Farmington while there.

Tri-Town Ambulance and Rescue Service is once again doing birthday calendars after a year's absence. If you would like to remember someone's birthday or your own the cost of the calendar is minimal considering the price of calendars these days and you get six free listings. Ann Roy (Rick) is in charge of the Locke Mills-Greenwood area and would be pleased to hear from you or contact any member of the service including myself. This helps support the services whose expenses, like everyone else's, continue to rise. You will, by the way, have to keep trying if I'm not home since my answering machine has decided to take a sabbatical. I haven't had it for a year yet so I'm a bit annoyed at its laying down on the job. It does come on but only records half the message such as "please give me a call" and the rest before and after is blank. The only thing you know is someone has confidently left a message which he or she figures you have decided to ignore. "How to win friends and influence people!"

Just Imagine Coffee House

This is a reminder to everyone who enjoyed the first season of the Just Imagine Coffee House last year that the second season is about to begin with an open air performance on the Bethel town common. The Zingo Zango Generic Jug Band will appear in concert from 2 to 4 p.m. under Neil Olson's tent on Saturday, Sept. 19. Admission is free, but you ought to bring along a lawn chair or blanket and be prepared to tap your feet or get up and dance.

Future coffee houses will be announced in the Mahoosuc Arts Council calendar and in The Bethel Citizen. Twice-monthly performances are planned from October through April in the basement meeting room of the West Parish Congregational Church. Refreshments at modest prices will be available for the whole family.

Lastly, the committee of volunteers needs additional help in making this season a success. The ability to heat water and set up tables and chairs is the only qualification you need to have. Call Jan Todd at 824-3209 if you have a Saturday night you can spare.

Mahoosuc Arts Notes:

Excitement is in the air as preparations are finalizing for the arrival of Irons and Garbo. Both the schools and community will be benefiting from a great show.

In addition to Maria Termini, our winner of the Hike/Walk/Run T-shirt design contest, we would like to recognize Eva Paul whose "running shoe" design will be featured on the Mahoosuc Arts' first poster which advertises their fundraiser at Sunday River in October. This particular poster is an initial notification of the event and contains pre-registration forms for interested race participants. We would like to thank Maria and Eva for contributing their time to create these original designs. Posters and forms are posted around the Bethel area.

In addition, we would like to thank the following organizations for their sponsorship of the Hike/Walk/Run: Boise Cascade, Crisports, Gould Academy, Groan and McGurn, Sunday River, The Bethel Citizen and The Lewiston Sun Journal. Sponsors contributed cash donations as well as in-kind contributions for this fundraiser.

SLIDE SHOW ON CHINA

Ann Morton will present a slide show on her recent trip to China, on Thursday, Sept. 17 at the Town Hall in Hanover.

The show is open to the public. Donations will go to benefit the Roberts Memorial Library.

BETHEL SENIOR CITIZENS TO TAKE FALL FOLIAGE TRIP

The annual fall foliage trip of the Bethel Senior Citizens will be Wednesday, Sept. 23 and will leave from the Bethel Health Center at 8 a.m.

The trip will go through New Hampshire to St. Johnsbury, Vt., for a visit to the Fairbanks-Morse Museum. Dinner will be at the Lincoln Inn.

A stop will also be made at the Farmer's Daughter Gift Shop.

Cost will be $20 plus dinner. For more information call Helen Saunders 836-3192 or Lindley Wieden 824-3276. Reservations are still available.

NEWS FROM Windy Valleys SnoMo Club

The first meeting of the 1992-93 snowmobiling season for the Newry based club will take place on Thursday, Sept. 17 at 7 p.m. at the Newry Town Office.

Anyone new to the area and who likes to snowmobile or just walk the trails is most welcome to join us. We especially invite all landowners to this meeting. Without you, we couldn't enjoy riding at all.

Our first major event will be the annual lawn sale which benefits the Oxford County Association for Retarded Children. This will take place at Newry Corner on Saturday, Oct. 3. Look for our signs.

CROSS-COUNTRY QUILTERS

Five members of the Cross-Country Quilters welcomed Cindy Kane Olson as a new member at their first meeting of the season, Tuesday, Sept. 8 at the Bethel Library.

Everyone had a chance to study Mary Leanard's pictures of the quilts exhibited this summer at the Maine state show and also at a large Vermont show that she attended. Programs and activities for future meetings were discussed. It was decided to begin immediately putting together the next raffle quilt to benefit the library. It will be a double sized sampler quilt with each member responsible for doing several of the 12 1/2 inch squares. Further instructions will be forthcoming at the next meeting, Tuesday, Sept. 22. at the library at 9:30 a.m.

In October the usual meeting schedule will resume, the first and third Tuesdays of the month, Oct. 6 and 20 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Submit $5 dues to Ruth Feeney, treasurer, no later than Oct. 20. Part of this fee goes to the State Guild for the newsletter. Anyone interested in quilting is invited to join.

MIDDLE INTERVALE MEETING HOUSE SOCIETY CONCERT

The Middle Intervale Meeting House Society is concluding its summer activities with a musical concert on Sunday afternoon Sept. 20, at 2:30 p.m. The program will feature the Kayser family's Edelweiss Trio and the Hillsmen Chorus.

The Edelweiss Trio is a string ensemble of father and two young daughters.

Heidi Kayser, violin, age 12, is a student of Clorinda Noyes, violinist with the Portland Symphony Orchestra (P.S.O.). Heidi has been guest soloist with the Community Orchestra of the P.S.O. on two occasions. She has done numerous solo recitals for the past six years. She is a member of the Youth Orchestra of the P.S.O., and was concert mistress at their last concert in April. She was accepted, after auditioning, by the Portland String Quartet to attend a two week string workshop at Colby College this summer.

Erica Kayser, cello, age 10, is studying with Kathleen Foster, also with the P.S.O. Erica was a member of the P.S.O.'s youth orchestra for two years, and has performed with the Community Orchestra of the P.S.O. Both she and her sister Heidi have just returned from a one week sojourn at the restored Rockport Opera House in Rockport, where they performed as part of the "New Generation" of the "Bay Chamber Concert" series.

George (Dutch) Kayser, viola, has played the cello with the Community Orchestra of the P.S.O. He has played with the Monmouth New Jersey Symphony; the Adult Orchestra of the Hart School of Music, Hartford, Conn. and many local groups.

For this concert the trio will be playing favorites from the classics as well as music of today such as selections from "The Sound of Music."

The second group featured in this program is "The Hillsmen Chorus" of Norway-South Paris which is celebrating its 15th anniversary this year.

Come and enjoy this musical hour and your donation will help continue the preservation of this fine old meeting house.

BETHEL SENIOR CITIZENS

Bethel Senior Citizens met at the Town Hall in Locke Mills for a delicious buffet dinner by the Fireman's Auxiliary. Fifty-seven were present.

President Helen Saunders conducted the meeting. Reports were read and a blessing offered by Ranald Stevens. There are now 96 members under 80, 21 over 80 and one over 90.

Birthdays celebrated were Cedric Russell, Roger Twitchell, Dorothy Thomas, Mary Valentine, Avis Dooen, Frances Saunders, Phyllis and Bill Bancroft and Leona Flint, who received special mention for all the beautiful cakes she made for us in the past. The day's delicious cake was made and donated by the Home Bakery.

A beautiful dried flower wreath was donated by Louise Twitchell for next month's raffle.

Jim Brown presented slides and a commentary on a trip to Switzerland which was greatly appreciated.

The next meeting will be Oct. 14 at the West Bethel Grange Hall.

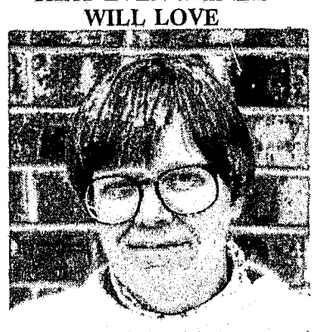
SHAREHOLDER LOANS THAT EVEN THE IRS WILL LOVE



This article is brought to you by Jane D. Gray, CPA

What if you are both a shareholder and employee of your own company, and you need some extra cash? Can you borrow from your business?

From your perspective, a loan from your company probably seems like a convenient source of temporary (and tax-free) cash. But from the IRS perspective, "loans" from companies to their shareholders often look suspiciously like dividend or salary payments, which the IRS would like to tax.

When examining shareholder loans, the IRS tries to distinguish between legitimate loans and salary or dividend payments which are merely disguised as loans. Here are some tips to help make sure that your shareholder loans stand up to IRS scrutiny:

• Establish a formal, written policy for making loans to employees. Enforce the policy fairly, and do not favor shareholders over nonshareholders.

• Document all employee loans with formal, written agreements.

• Make sure all loans require regular payments with market rates of interest. Shareholder/borrowers should make all loan payments on time and in full: this is probably the single most important factor in defending a shareholder loan against IRS attack.

• The company should obtain collateral for loans when appropriate. This is especially important for large loans and loans used to purchase real estate.

• Each shareholder loan should be shown as a receivable on the company's books.

Before arranging a shareholder loan, it's best to see your accountant. It's especially important to obtain professional advice if you plan to tap your company for a loan with a below-market rate of interest. Your accountant can also advise if there are state tax laws specifically governing (or restricting) shareholder loans.

ALICE CHUTE

Alice Chute, 90, died Monday, Sept. 7, 1992 at her home in Bryant Pond.

She was born in Auburn, Oct. 14, 1901, the daughter of Herbert and Angie Smith Chute. Miss Chute had been employed by the Stewart's Corn Shop and E.L. Tebbets Spool Co. in Locke Mills. She was also the proprietress of the "Roadside Rest Restaurant" in Bryant Pond.

She is survived by two nephews, Robert E. Buchanan of Auburn and Richard Buchanan of Cocoa Beach, Fla. Her longtime companion, Orissa Wolcott of Bryant Pond died Sept. 10, 1992.

She was predeceased by two brothers, Frank and Lenwood Chute, and a half-sister, Nellie Edna Smith Buchanan.

Funeral services were held at the Andrews Funeral Home, South Woodstock, Saturday at 11 a.m., following visiting hours from 10:30 to 11 a.m. Interment will be in the Maple Grove Cemetery, Mechanic Falls, Maine.

ORISSA F. WOLCOTT

Orissa F. Wolcott, 79, of Bryant Pond, died Thursday, Sept. 10, 1992 at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway where she had been a patient for two days.

She was born in Mechanic Falls Aug. 15, 1913, the daughter of Rev. Adrian F. and Fleeta Keene Wolcott. She was a graduate of Mechanic Falls High School and had been employed by Stowells Mill in Bryant Pond and E.L. Tebbets Spool Co. in Locke Mills.

She is survived by two sisters, Eunice Pitt of Yarmouth, and Virginia Plummer of West Roxbury, Mass. She was predeceased by her longtime companion, Alice Chute.

Funeral services were held at Andrews Funeral Home, South Woodstock Monday. Interment was in Maple Grove Cemetery, Mechanic Falls.

GLADYS M. CROSS

Gladys M. Cross, 93, died Thursday, Sept. 10, 1992 at Ledgeview Nursing Home, West Paris.

She was born at Gilead, Jan. 8, 1899, the daughter of Will and Nellie Kendell Bennett. She was educated in Bethel area schools and was a homemaker all of her life. Mrs. Cross was a charter member of the Bethel Senior Citizens and lived in Bethel most of her life. She married Edgar E. Cross, who died in 1953.

Surviving are four sons, Alton Cross of Berlin, N.H., Stuart, Donald and Norton Cross, all of Bethel; two daughters, Norma Cross of Bethel and Mary Hester of Okanogan, Wash.; a brother, Sherwin Bennett of Mission Hills, Calif.; three sisters, Mildred Cushing of Wilton, Ruby Largey of Fryeburg and Phyllis Thayer of Danielson, Conn. and 10 grandchildren. She was predeceased by a sister, Ethel Vashaw and two brothers, Ormand and Raymond Bennett.

Graveside services will be held at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 19 at the Pine Grove Cemetery, West Bethel.

Following the service, friends and relatives are invited to gather at the American Legion Hall, Vernon Street, Bethel.

RICHARD "POP" HOWE

Richard "Pop" Howe, 70 of West Paris, died Friday, Sept. 11, 1992 at Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston.

He was Born Oct. 1, 1921 at Woodstock, the son of Harry and Eva Buck Howe. He was educated in Woodstock schools and served in the U.S. Army 103rd Infantry, 43rd Division, in Germany during World War II. He was self-employed most of his life as a painter and was a member of the VFW Post in South Paris. He lived in West Paris for 25 years, moving there from Woodstock. He married the former Gertrude Durgin, who died in September, 1990.

Mr. Howe is survived by a daughter, Christine Howe; a brother, Charles Howe of Bryant Pond; and two sisters, Evelyn Merrill of Augusta and Inez Howe of Portland.

Graveside services were held Tuesday at Lakeside Cemetery, Bryant Pond. Donations in his memory may be made to American Cancer Society, P.O. Box 456, Brunswick, Me 04011.

THEODORE "TED" OLSON

Theodore "Ted" Olson, 60, died Friday Sept. 11, 1992 at his home in Bryant Pond after a five-month struggle with cancer.

He was born at Newry Nov. 21, 1931, the son of Ole and Matilda Fortier Olson. He married Dehra Morgan on April 29, 1949 and for the last 22 years lived in the Bryant Pond area. For many years, he was a self-employed logger; for the last 20 years, he worked for Penley Corp. of West Paris as wood buyer and land manager. He was past master of Granite Lodge 182 of Bryant Pond, and Kora Temple Shrine of the Scottish Rite Bodies of Lewiston and Portland. He attended Grace Fellowship Church of South Paris.

Mr. Olson is survived by his wife of Bryant Pond; a daughter Pamela Baker of West Paris; two granddaughters; a great-granddaughter and three sisters, Sarah Stevens of Bethel, Bertha Cummings of Pittsfield, and Gina Haggett of Shrewsbury, Mass. He was predeceased by one sister, Annie Olson and four brothers, Ola, Jorgen, Haakon, and Ole Olson Jr.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Raymond Funeral Home, Norway with the Rev. Lloyd Waterhouse officiating. Interment will be in the Lakeside Cemetery, Bryant Pond. There were no visiting hours. In lieu of flowers donation in Ted's memory can be sent to Grace Fellowship Building Fund, c/o Lloyd Waterhouse, P.O. Box 162, W. Paris, Maine 04289.

ALAN W. BUCKMAN

Alan W. Buckman, 22, died Monday, Sept. 7, 1992 at Maine Medical Center following a brief illness.

He was born in Norway, July 15, 1970, the son of Alan W. Sr. and Susie Hart Buckman. He attended Telstar High School and graduated in the class of 1988. He was a veteran, having served in the U.S. Air Force. He enjoyed working with computers and playing bass guitar with local bands. At the time of his death, he was employed by C.N. Brown in Bethel.

He is survived by his parents and one brother, Nathaniel Wade Buckman all of Bethel; several aunts, uncles and cousins.

Funeral services were held Friday at 1 p.m. at the Andrews Funeral Home, South Woodstock with interment in the So. Bethel Cemetery. Visiting hours were at the funeral home from 6 to 8 p.m. on Thursday. In lieu of flowers, donations in his memory may be made to the American Cancer Society, Maine Div. Inc., 52 Federal St., Brunswick, Maine 04011.

Who Passed Away
September 15, 1991

People Stare...
They know I am sad.
They smile to ease my pain.
Can't they see? There's nothing there. I look whole, but everything inside has been pulled out.
There is nothing there.
When you left, you took it all.

Don't they see?
I'm not the same; not ever will be.
Life will never be innocent again.

When I reach out and love others,
It fills the void inside
But I will never be whole again until I'm with you again.

Knowing you are smiling up above has kept me going.

With all my love,
Sharon

Who Passed Away
September 15, 1991

You were different from anyone we'd ever met before.
And yet - somehow - there was something distinctly familiar about you.

Maybe it was in the way your eyes twinkled as they laughed.
Or maybe it was the warmth of your smile.
Or the kindness in your heart.

Whatever it was - it was the reflection of your beautiful soul.

And though no one person can change the world.
We want you to know-
That you; your love; your caring ways; your gentleness; your understanding; your patience; your friendship; your love of your country; your love of life and your belief in all mankind have changed our lives significantly.

You are thought of, and remembered fondly - every day. You are missed more with every passing day. And you will always be loved by us -

With all our Love

BETHEL SAVINGS BANKS, FSB
SERVICE CHARGE & FEE SCHEDULE
Effective October 19, 1992

PERSONAL CHECKING ACCOUNT

Regular Checking Account

A non-interest bearing account which can be opened for as little as $100.00.

1. If you maintain a balance of $400.00 you will not be subject to a service charge and we will process 15 items free per cycle. (Additional items processed at 20¢ per check.)
2. If your balance should fall below $400.00 (but not lower than $300.00) at any time during the cycle a $5.00 service charge will be imposed. We will still process 15 items free. (Additional items processed at 20¢ per check.)
3. Balances below $300.00 anytime during the cycle will be subject to a one time monthly charge of $7.00. Fifteen items will be processed free. (Additional items processed at 20¢ per check.)

SENIOR CITIZEN CHECKING ACCOUNTS: For customers age 60 and older, minimum balance and per item charges will be waived. Free wallet safety paper checks are also available. Please notify the bank if you are entitled to this free service and we will waive fees effective. (With the notification date.)

Special Checking Accounts: No minimum balance required. Monthly maintenance fee of $2.00 plus 25¢ per check written.

PERSONAL NOW CHECKING ACCOUNTS:

1. $100.00 will open this account and there is no service charge if a minimum balance of $500.00 is maintained during the statement cycle. This includes the processing of 15 free items each cycle. (Additional items will be subject to a 20¢ per check charge.)
2. In addition, if the minimum is maintained, interest will be credited to your account monthly. The rate paid will vary* and is subject to change weekly. A current rate sheet is available upon request.
3. If your balance should drop below $500.00, a $7.00 service charge will be applied and interest forfeited for that cycle. We will still provide processing of 15 items free. (Additional items processed will be subject to a 20¢ per check charge.) *This rate structure applies to all new and existing accounts.

BUSINESS CHECKING ACCOUNTS:

Business NOW accounts: A $100.00 deposit is needed to open this account. This account is designed for qualifying businesses and will pay interest monthly. (There is no minimum balance requirement in order to earn interest.) Interest rate is variable and subject to change weekly. This rate structure applies to all new and existing accounts. Current rate sheets are available upon request. The account is also subject to the following charges:

Maintenance Fee	$6.00
Checks Paid on Account (each)	$.15
Deposited Items (each)	$.10
Return Items (each)	$2.00

Commercial Checking Accounts: Minimum balance to open is $100.00. No minimum balance required. All business accounts will be subject to the following charges:

Maintenance Fee	$7.00
Checks Paid on Account (each)	$.15
Deposited Items (each)	$.10
Return Items (each)	$2.00

An earnings credit is computed on the average collected balance less equity reserve. This earning credit rate may change periodically without notification.

OTHER ACCOUNTS:

Savings Accounts: This passbook account offers competitive rates and service charges if the minimum balance of $100.00 is maintained ($10.00 for minors). A $1.00 monthly charge is imposed if the balance falls below the minimum and interest is forfeited. (This charge is waved for minors and senior citizens.) Interest will be compounded monthly and credited to your account. The rate is based on market conditions. A current rate sheet is available upon request.

Super NOW Checking: Available to customers who qualify for a personal account. A minimum account balance of $2,500.00 must be maintained in order to earn variable money market rates. A monthly maintenance fee of $2.00 applies to all accounts. If the balance of $2,500.00 is not maintained, a $7.00 service charge will be imposed and the interest rate will revert to a regular NOW account rate. All rates are variable and subject to change weekly. This rate structure applies to all new and existing accounts

Cash Management Accounts:

Regular: This account offers a money market rate as determined by the bank on a weekly basis. $2,500.00 will open this account and there is no service charge as long as the minimum is maintained. A $7.00 charge is imposed if the balance is below $2,500.00 and the interest rate will revert to a regular NOW account rate. All rates are variable and a check writing option is also available for those customers qualifying for a checking account. Ask a Customer Service Representative for option available.

Silver Accounts: Senior Citizen (age 60 & over) may receive money market rates based on a Tiered Structure. If minimum balance of $2,500.00 is not maintained, rate will revert to current NOW account rate and a $7.00 service charge will be imposed. A current rate sheet is available upon request.
